He said that as Muslims complete another century they should again study the history of their prophet and learn from his work and deeds, and adhere to the word of God as well, helping today's turbulent world put an end to its anxiety and instability and achieve real peace.

"It is the responsibility of Muslims to uphold the divine teachings and return to God by faithfully following his injucnons," he said.

'Once we have done that we shall be confident of victory and God's support." He said that Muslims were being persecuted in various parts of the world and we should be aware of the dimensions of these grave matters and the conspiracies being woven around us."

The King welcomed the pilgrims to the holy land in his name and in the name of the people of the Kingdom, wishing them a bappy and blessed pilgrimage.

By Brack Curry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP) - President Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan plunged into the final and decisive weeks of their campaign for president of the United States Wednesday with Republican Reagan leading in most of the polls but with millions of Americans still undecided how they will vote on Nov. 4.

Political experts predict the outcome will hinge on the 30 per cent of America's 160.5 million eligible voters who are still undecided whether to re-elect Democrat Carter or to give Reagan four years in the White House.

In addition to naming the next American chief executive, voters will elect 34 U.S. Senators, 435 members of the U.S. House of Representatives and 13 state governors.

It has been a campaign marked by strident accusations. There bave been partisan attacks that would trouble the elderly, alarm blacks, frighten the jobless, make voters worry about the Soviet military threat, and stir Jewish fears. Carter has implied that Reagan is a racist and a warmonger.

Most of the blame for the mean-spirited campaign bas - in the public mind devolved ou Carter, who last week disavowed low-road tactics.

But prominent supporters of both Carter and Reagan are still pursuing what are widely perceived as negative campaign tactics. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie implied in a speech that the United States might be "end-lessly at war all over the globe" if Reagan were elected president. Six defense advisers to Reagan this week accused the Carter Administration of trying to "hide the truth" about the defense readiness of the U.S. by telling the military to play down negative aspects of the issue. Eight big states with a combined total of 228 electoral votes could decide the election. These are California, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Texas, Ohio, Michigan and Florida. Under the U.S. Constitution, the presidential election is decided by the Electoral College and not by popular vote. Each state is allocated electoral votes based on the size of its population.

There are 538 Electoral College votes, cast by representatives of each state and the District of Columbia. The winner of a majority of popular votes in each state is awarded all its electoral votes and the candidate who gains a majority, 270 votes, wins the presidency. A new survey by public opinion pollster

Mervin D. Field bas Reagan making strong gains in the last two weeks and now leading Carter in electoral votes by a margin of nearly two to one. A Time magazine poli gave Reagan a firm lead in states with 93 electoral votes and showed states with 222 more votes leaning his way. In contrast, Carter was safely ahead in states with only 54 votes and has an edge in those with just 93 more.

He also inspected the National Guard Medical Services headquarters in Mina. Prince Khaled visited the various clinics, emergency hospital, the laboratory, mobile clinics and first aid clinics. The tour included the Signal Corps and Maintenance and Transport Corps headquarters.

Prince Khaled expressed his satisfaction on the preparation taken by National Guard for the service of pilgrims. "The National Guard Secretariat in the Western Region bas mobilized all its potential for this noble task," he said. The Secretariat has provided tents, carpet, equipment and services, through committees formed especially for the Pilgrimage.

The National Guard Medical Services opened a fully equipped field hospital in Mina. The hospital has been provided with specialists of various medical treatments. It can uodergo surgery operations without outside help. Several medical stations were also opeoed in Musdalifa, Arafat and mobile stations in other Pilgrimage places.

Prince Khaled said the National Guard provides a variety of services that include cultural aspects, guidance and maintaining security. There are guardsmen appninted to reply to pilgrims' questions no the perfurmance of Pilgirmage, others provide drinking water, help broken vehicles and organize scientific and religious seminars.

The success and reliability of the Mirrlees Blackstone Etype add up to just one thing. The ESL Mk2 In the 30 years since it was introduced more than 8000 Blackstone E Type diesel engines have been commissioned for marine and industrial duties in all parts of the world.

Based upon the wealth of operational experience from these engines an extensive research and development programme now brings an addition to the range in the ESL Mk2.

A fine example of British engineering at its best the Mk2 is a completely metricated design incorporating many parts which are interchangeable with existing E Type engines. Featuring an improved power/weight ratio and economical fuel consumption the ESL Mk2 is available in 6 and 8 cylinder units with outputs of 1090 and 1460 bhp respectively at 1000 rev/min. giving generating set outputs of 775 kW for the ESL6 Mk2 and 1050 kW for the ESL8 Mk2 at 50 Hz.

Mufti Mahmoud, 61, dies of heart attack

KARACHI, Oct. 15 (AP) - Maulana Mufti Mahmoud, a Pakistani religious and political leader whose movement destablized the late Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bbutto's regime before its overthrow in 1977, died of a beart attack at a Karachi mosque Tuesday.

Mahmoud, 61, was president of the officially banned, but still active, Pakistan National Alliance which was the major opposition group contesting the March 1977 general elections

When pro-Bbutto candidates claimed victory with some 80 per cent of the vote, Mahmoud charged that polling was rigged and organized a mass movement with the belp of Muslim clergy which eventually shook the regime.

Some 300 persons died in nationwide protests by the time Army Chief of Staff Mohammad Zia ul-Haq toppled Bbutto in the 1977 coup. Gen. Zialater took the post of president and otlawed political activity after canceling a promised general election a year ago, a move Mahmoud sharply criticized.

In a condolence message, Zia called his one-time detractor a "prominent religious scholar and veteran political leader" wbo commanded considerable respect for his 'astute poblical wisdom."

A military aircraft was to be provided by the government to fly Mah moud's body to his bometown for burial, a government spokesman said.

U.S.-Somalia pact facing congressional opposition

LONDON, Oct. 15 (OFNS) - American plans to establish naval and air facilities in Somalia are being seriously jeopardized by congressional oppositioo at a time when Ethiopia and the Soviet bloc are engaged in an international campaign to stop the U.S.-Somali defense agreement from being implemented.

The U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Foreign Operations bas voted to refuse eodorsement of the Carter administration's decision to divert $20 million from the 1980 budget for arms sales credits to Somalia. President Said Barre's regime agreed last August to give the U.S. military access to the facilities in Berbera and Mogadishu, originally developed by the Soviet Union. While this refusal by the House to approve the necessary military appropriation will not necessarily scupper the agreement, the process of implementing it will be seriously complicated.

The U.S. administration can reallocate funds without congressional approval by the formality of notifying Congress of its decision; but such a move would be unpopular and could invite congressional retaliation by curtailing the flexibility allowed to the administration in reprogramming funds after they have been appropriated.

reporting on the Congress decision, the chairman of the foreign Operations Subcommittee, Clarence Long, said it was felt that the administration had not presented an adequate case for the U.S. to develop a military relationship with Somalia.

Congressional opposition came after hearing testimony from the State Department and the Pentagon about the military facilities in Kenya, Oman, Diego Garcia and Egypt, as well as Somalia, to enable America and its NATO allies to respond defensively to developments in the Gulf area and Afghanistan.

Anxieries were expressed in a letter addressed to the Secretary of State, Edmund Muskie, by seven of the eight members of the House's Africa subcommittee about U.S. involvement in the current dispute between Somalia aod Ethiopia over the disputed Ogaden pro-

Its chairman, Congressman Stepben Solarz, said he did not believe the Somali government intended to end its military involvement in the Ogaden.

If the Ethiopians carried out their threat to attack Somalia unless it stopped its activities in the Ogadon, Solarz said the U.S. would be faced with a dilemma: either stand aside and abandon a new military ally, or come to Somalia's aid and get involved in a conflict where the U.S. has no vital interest. "In either case," he said, "we lose,"

Replying to these criticisms, Matthew Nimetz, the under secretary of state for security assistance, said the administration had paid special attention to the political issues involved. All the parties to the conflict bad been told that the U.S. military cooperation was simply "for the purpose of strengthening Somalia's defense capability, and not directed at Ethiopia or any other neighbors of Somalia."

The U.S. position, he added, was clear: 'We believe that the issue should be resolved peacefully by the parties".

Erbakan re-arrested; to be tried

ANKARA, Oct. 15 (Agencies) - Turkey's military authorities have re-arrested Necmettio Erbakan, the Islamie fundamentalist political leader who was first detained after last month's coup, and intend to try him, police sources said Wednesday.

They said Erbakan, 54, was picked up Tuesday night with two members of his National Salvacon Party (NSP) two nights after they had been released.

On Sunday, the state radio reported that both Erbakan and another minority political party leader. the extreme right-wing Alpaslan Turkes, would be tried.

Turkes, head of the Nationalist Movement Party (NMP), was already under arrest. He and 16 followers are charged with "instigating the people against one another and inciting massaeres." which curries a minimum penalty of 20 years imprisonment. The maximum penalty is death.

Erbakan, the radio reported, will face the less serious charge of offenses against the secular principles of the state. In the weeks before the coup he held several rallies, urging a return to strict Islamic principles abandoned in the 1920s. The charges carry two to seven years imprisonment.

Sources close to the military administration did not rule out the possibility that Erbakan and his followers could face stiffer charges than those already announced.

The other two main political leaders. former prime ministers Sulcyman Demirel, ousted in the Sept. 12 coup, and Bulent Ecevit, were released last Saturday after spending a month in detention at a military holiday camp.

All political party activities have been banned under the six-man Military Security

Relations between Germanies turn stormy

BONN, Oct. 15 (AFP) - Relations between the two Germanies, which have been rocky since the Polish crisis took off this summer, have deteriorated rapidly in the past

. Bonn was quick to interpret Monday's harsh words on the East-West split by East German leader Erich Honecker as further evidence of a hardening of his country's stand on improved relations. It was announced this week that West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt would cut short his vacation to preside Wednesday over a cabinet meeting centered mainly on the growing problems between the two Germanies.

Relations between the two took a sharp turn for the worse Friday with East Germany's annouocement that it would sharply increase the amount of money foreigners from non-Socialist countries would have to exchange each day when visiting East Germany. The change, which brought heated West German protests, was viewed as a sharp blow to the normalization of relations between the two countries and aimed at discouraging West Germans from crossing the

Two-time Nobel winner explored DNA, protein

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP) — Frederick Sanger, who won the Nobel Prize for Chemistry for the second time Tuesday, was the first scientist to determine the complete chemical structure proteins and a piooeer in exploring the mysteries of DNA, the component of all living matter.

Sanger was born in 1918, the soo of a country farmer in Gloucestershire County in southwest England. He was educated at Bryanstoo, one of Britain's top private schools, and later at St. Johns College, Cambridge University, where he gained an honors degree in 1939 and a doctorate four years later for his work oo metabolism of the amino acid lysine, Sanger, who is married and has three children, was between 1949 and 1951 the holder of the Beit Memorial Fellowship for medical research. At the eod of this term, he joined Britain's National Research Council and is currently head of the division of protein and nucleic acid chemistry at its laboratory of

Rookie Walk wins

Phillies dump Royals 7-6

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 AP) — Bake McBride hammered a three-run homer and Bob Boone rifled a pair of RBI doubles as the Philadelphia Phillies stormed from behind for a 7-6 victory over a battling Kansas City team Tuesday night in the 1980 World Series

A crowd of 65,791, largest to watch a World Series game since 1964, kept up a steady roar as the Phillies won their first series game in 65 years. The last one was won in 1915 when the pitcher was Hall of Famer Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Tuesday night, the winning pitcher was a 23-year-old rookie, Bob Walk, who began the season in the minors and was pressed into the npening game assignment because of the scramhled condition of the Phillies pitching staff after the grueling National League playoff series against Houston.

Walk, recovering from a rocky start, did a gallant juh against the Royals, champions of the American League, until he was shelled nul in the eighth inning. He became the first rookie to pitch and win a series opener since Joe Black did it for the Brooklyn Dodgers in

It was a night for newcomers as the expansion team Royals made their first World Series appearance, the Phillies played their first series game since 1950, and both clubs went into the series with rookie managers the first time that has happened in the history of the fall classic.

Early nn, this looked like it would be a Kansas City night as the Royals rushed tn a 4-0 lead against Walk on a pair of two-run bomers. Amos Otis connected in the second inning following a walk to leadoff man Dar-26th birthday, unloaded the first of his two in baseball history to hit two home runs in his first series game.

for two runs, brought Tug McGraw in to relieve Walk.

The Phillies, following the pattern they had established in the dramatic five-game National League championship series against the Astros, quickly wiped out the 4-0 deficit.

Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, whn woo 20 games this season for the third time in his career, retired the first seven batters he faced on was sitting on the 4-0 lead with one in the third when Larry Bowa stroked the first

Phillies hit, a single up the middle. Bowa then stole second and raced bome when Boone, playing on one healthy leg, doubled to left field. Boone suffered a badly hruised foot in the playoffs but pledged to play in this series. That brought up leadoff man Lonnie Smith, inserted in left field when Philadelphia manager Dallas Green decided to use his regular, Greg Luzinski, as the designated hitter.

Smith delivered a single to left and Boone stopped at third as George Brett cut off the throw. When Smith made a wide turn around first, Brett decided to run him down. As the

England faces stern test in World Cup qualifier

LONDON, Oct. 15 (R). - Soccer nations of Europe will be on parade in strength tonight when seven world cup qualifying matches, involving five of the European groups, will be played.

Belgium, runners-up to West Germany in the European championship cootested in Italy last June, face Ireland in Dublin.

The Irish have made a dream start by winning in Cyprus and theo beating the Ducth. The Belgians reinforce their team with Edwin Vandenbergh, top scorer in Europe last season, who missed the European finals. Qualifying group three stages two matches - the Icelanders visit Moscow, where they can hardly expect to escape defeat, and the Turks, beaten 3-1 by Iceland in their opening match last month, face a Welsh team in Car-

Injury-hit England are expecting a difficult 90 minutes when they meet Romania in a group four match. Manager Ron Greenwood has made three changes to the side which whipped Norway 4-0 last month and his new-look outfit will find the Romanians eager to make up for their disappointing 1-1 draw with the Norwegians in Oslo.

With Switzerland and Hungary completing a strong group both teams will be going allout fur victory.

With Kevin Keegan, Trevor Brooking and Ray Wilkins all missing though injury Greenwood received further set-backs when striker Paul-Mariner and full-back Viv Anderson joined the casualty list at the week-end.

Nottingham Forest's transfer-listed Garry Birtles comes into the attack with Liverpool's Phil Neal replacing Andersoo. The other change is Ray Clemence for Peter Shilton in bnme, making it 4-2.

Pete Rose was the oext batter and got in a cat and-mouse cootest with Leonard, stepping out of the box to try to break the pitcher's concentration. Leocard then hit Rose on the right knee. Mike Schmidt walked as the right-center field scoreboard led cheers, asking if the K.C. pitcher was experiencing "a touch of wildness?"

The cheers really rocked Veterans Stadium momeots later when McBride, batting deanup, slammed Leonard's 1-1 serve over the right field wall. The shot banged into the line of National League logos that decorate the fence just below the scoreboard over the 37-foot sign.

That made the score 5-4 Philadelphia, but the Phillies weren't finished. In the fourth, Manny Trilln, their playoff MVP, beat ont a single behind second base. When Leonard bounced a pickoff throw past first baseman Aikens for an error, Trilln took second. Bowa grounded ont, but Boone delivered again, this time drilling a double to the right field corner which scored Trilln and made it 6-4.

In the fifth, the Phillies came back for more. With nne nut Schmidt walked again and whn had three hits in the game, singled to left. Reliever Renie Martin, whn had come nn in the fourth, then hit Luzinski in the back, loading the bases. The count went to 3-2 before Garry Maddox lifted a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Schmidt to make it 7-4.

While the Phillies were building their lead, Walk had settled down nicely. He was perhaps a batter away from being knocked out in the third when a two-out walk to Porter and hits by Otis and Clint Hurdle threatened to increase the Royals' lead to 5-0. But Porter was cut down trying to score, ending the inning and saving Walk.

When he next took the Mound the Phillies had shot to the front on their big inning. The young right-bander mowed down nine straight batters, and going into the eighth he had a string of MF 13. But then he ran out of George Brett, the major league batting leader with a remarkable .391 average this season, opened the eighth with a double tn the fence in left-center - his first hit of the night. Then Aikens ripped his second humer - annther rocket that jumped out beyond the fence in right-center field.

That made the score 7-6, and Walk was replaced by Tug McGraw, the 36-year-old left-hander who had set a league championship series record by appearing in all five

Green had wanted to give him a day's rest. Bot he felt he could not risk it.

McGraw, somewhat of a folk hero in this historic town, permitted a one-out single to Otis - his third hit of the game. But he got pinch-hitter John Wathan to slam into an inning-ending dnuble play and carried the slender 7-6 lead into the ninth. The fans roared louder and louder as McGraw retired leadoff batter Frank White oo a grounder to third. With the crescendo of cheers building McGraw then struck out U.L. Washington for the second out in this hattle former also-rans. The Phillies and Royals had won their divisional titles and in 1976, 1977 and 1975, nuly to fail in league championships. But now they were closing their. First game of the 1980 World Series.

As the scoreboard said: "This joint is jumping," with most of the fans on their feet to prove it, McGraw struck out Wilson to eod

And as McGraw lifted his hand high, the fans turned this brisk autumn evening intn a New Year's Eve in Octuber. The so-called boo-birds of Philadelphia openeda wild celebration that they deserved.

UNITY APPEAL

King Khaled's appeal for Muslim unity in his address to the pilgrims this year has come at the right time in view of the fratricidal war now raging between Iraq and Iran which is costing both countries dearly in men and material resources. The King made a fervent appeal for solidarity which, under the banner of Islam, would help greatly to strengthen the Muslims everywhere and create an internatinnal power to be reckooed with.

Unfortunately, there is a great deal to be done before this can be realized and the spectacle of the war between two of the biggest Islamic states aggravates the agony of those wishing to see greater inter-Islamie understanding and amity.

The government of the Kingdom, under the late King Faisal and oow under the leadership of King Khaled bad this unity in mind when it encouraged and sponsored the creatinn of various inter-Islamie institutions to bring the Islamic states much closer to each other. One of these was the Organization of Islamie Conference which takes care nf the annual meetings of the Islamic foreign ministers. Other institutions have been promoting economic cooperatino among the

The OIC has been trying to bring an eod to the war between Iraq and Iran but so far without much success. If it succeeds this time oow that the Secretary General Habib Chatti is back in Baghdad, it will have given the institution a shot in the arm and enhanced its prestige not only among the Muslims but to the world at large.

UGANDAN TROUBLES

Thanks to the assistance of Tanzanian forces stationed in Uganda, the Ugandan government was able to declare Wednesday that invading troops, allegedly loyal to the former president, Idi Amio, had been repulsed and that several border towns were recovered.

An announcement of victory was necessary if the Ugandan government and the ever-present Tanzanian forces were to retain any credibility after months of instability, insecurity and bloodshed. Vey few people inside or outside Uganda liked Amin. And there were many allegations of despotism and arbitrary arrests but at least the country was stable and most of the people there were mure or less secure if they did not challenge Amin's authority. But since the ouster, as a result of the Tanzanian iovasion, and oot because of internal upheaval, the country has been in trouble. Even its livestock have been affected - spirited away by marauders who sell them in neighboring countries. The Tanzanian army, which defeated Amio's, was unable to provide tranquility as it had been expected to do. Promised elections have been postponed and repostponed, and, if they are held at all, how free will they be with a foreign expeditionary force in residence there?

Israel's policies behind spread of anti-Semitism

EDITOR 'S NOTE: Christopher Mayhew is chair -man of the ANAF (Arab Friendship) Foundation and publisher of the fortnightly magazine Middle East International. Elected to parliament in 1945, he became Ernest Berin 's junior minister at the Foreign Office and held ministerial posts in later Labor gov eraments before resigning from the Labor party and joining the Liberals. He has written several books, including - with Michael Adams - ' 'Publish It Not the Middle East Cover -up ' '. Mayhew is one of the earliest and best known supporters of the Arab course in the West.

By Christopher Mayhew "Nn distinction can be made between anti-Israelism, anti-Zionism and anti-Semitism". Or so the Israeli cabinet declared recently commenting on the bomb outrage io Paris in which four Jews were killed and nine injured. Io the same spirit, Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin beld the French government partly to hlame for the crime, on the grounds that its hostile attitude toward Israel encouraged anti-Semitism. Israel's Fureign Minister Shamir made similar accusations against the European Community. Their intentioo is clear. Since anti-Semitism is almost universally detested, they hope that linking anti-Zionism with it will discredit and discourage honest critics of Israel. Anti-Semitism and Zionism have always fed upon each other, their fortuoes rising and falling together. Without the Russian pogroms in the last ceotury, the Zionist idea would never have caught on. Without the Nazi holocaust, the state of Israel would never have been born. It is oatural that at the present time Zionists should exploit the evil of anti-Semitism to win support for Israel and stifle criticism of its crimes.

But there are obvious, and serious dangers in what they are doing. In the first place, a vast proportion of world opinioo is, by their own definition, 'anti-Zionist'. It is enough that these people demand self-determination for the Palestinian Arabs and dispute the Israelis' claim to sovereignty over an undivided Jerusalem. On this definition, almost every government in the world is anti-Zionist, and also the eotire membership of the U.N.

Security Council. How can Begin and his ministers seriously maintain that all these people, all these governments, are in any sense anti-Semitic? The suggestion is preposterous, insane. By making it, the Israeli leaders risk angering the people they thus insult and arousing aoti-Semitie feelings among them. Moreover, since anti-Zionism is legitimate and widespread, identifying it with anti-Semitism gives anti-Semites an importance and legitimacy they certainly do not

And bow does this proposition account far the fact that many Jewish people - ofteo people of deep religious faith - are avowed opponents of Zionism? How can men be racially prejudiced against their own race? Israelis should be grateful to anti-Zinnist Jews. They play an important part in the fight against anti-Semitism, reminding Arabs that their enemy is not the Jewish people, but a political movement, Zinnism, which many brave and thoughtful Jews oppose.

Among Western countries, France, the country of Dreyfus, has one of the worst records of ann-Semitic prejudice, and unfortuoately there can be little doubt that its small but fanatical neo-Nazi groups are trying to gain notoriety and support by terrorist acts against Jews. But few things could do more to aid these groups, and to spread the plague of anti-Semitism worldwide, than the present policies of the Israeli government. These have made Israel one of the most isolated and unpopular countries in the world. The entire Muslim world craves the return of its holy places in Jerusalem, and the entire non-Muslim world craves secure supplies of oil; and both are frustrated by this single small country, bent oo occupying Arab territory in defiance of world opinioo and international law. It would be hard to invent a scenario more favorable to the spread of the evil of anti-Semitism. The Israeli leaders seem bent on fulfilling a famous prophecy. In 1917, Edwin Montagu, the only Jewish member of the British government which produced the Balfour Declaration, wrote a famous cabinet paper prophesying that if a Jewish state was established in Palestine, Jewish people everywhere, faced with dual lovalnes, would be put at risk. About the Balfour Declaration he wrote:

"I wish to place on record my view that the policy nf His Majesty's government is anti-Semitic in result and will prove a railying ground for anti-Semites in every country of the world."

This is not yet the case and oeed not become so. It is still open to the Israelis to accept a just settlement in the Middle East and to live in peace with their oeighbors, and thus to help Jewish people everywhere to live their lives free from discrimination and fear. But if Israel's policies are unchanged the danger of the anti-Semitic plague spreading seems

Hope for the 'have nots'

By William Keegan

WASHINGTON -"The 1980 meeting of the World Bank and International Mnnetary Fund may go down, almost in spite of itself, as a turning point in relations between the industrial and developing countries."

The author of this Delphie utterance - a senior international monetary official - went on to say that, in the face of the suspicions to the contrary, we may actually be witnessing the beginning of the end of the seemingly perpetual slanging match between the world's "baves" and "have nots."

This corridor conversation came as a breath of ... fresb air in the atmosphere of skepticism and cynicism which prevails at these meetings; for the contrary case is almost too easy tn make. Before the IMF meeting began, the United Nations Special Sessinn nn Development bad broken up in disarray. Like many a recent IMF meeting, this one seemed over almost before it had begun: the formal session which began last mooth had been preceded by meetings of the so-called Group of Ten finance ministers of the leading industrial countries, and of the key IMF ministerial policy-making group known as the "Interim Committee.

Both bad made ritual references to the problems of the less developed coootries, and emphasized the way the fund's resources were being beefed up to cope with the greater demands oo it.

But the predominant impression was that the industrial countries themselves felt bopelessly impotent in the face of the twin pressures of the oil crisis and persistent inflation. M. de la Larosiere, managing director of the IMF, unveiled the fund's analysis that it was going to be a pretty rough first half to the decade. The message from the rich countries was that they had problems ecough of their own. All the industrial countries seemed united in the desire to pass the buck: the crisis facing what are known as the "non-oil less developed countries" is that the past year's further doubling of the price of their oil imports completely dwarfs the toal sum they receive in aid from all quarters. For years at these meetings the IMF and the industrial countries have tended to deflect the limelight from the World Bank and the LDCs.

Key speeches hy the U.S., German and Freoch finance ministers all appeared to pay more than lip service to the oeed to do something for the group of non-OPEC developing countries. And the high spot of the meeting was a triumphantly moving and diplomatic speech hy the chairman, Amir H. Jamal, who as finance minister of Tanzania seized the opportunity to illustrate the LDC's problems with examples from his own country "which shares both the sense of despair and the fleeting gleams of hope characterizing most developing countries today.

Rhetoric and emotion apart, what then was the tentative reason for optimism — or perhaps less despair? - which lay behind that official's Delphic utterance. It lies in the common ground which could just be discerned beneath the feet of the many disputatious delegates.

It is now an longer senously questioned that the IMF (which lends to belp to countries - mainly-LDCs - over balance of payments problems) and the Warld Bank (which leads for specific development projects and programs) were not designed for the world of the nil crisis.

The IMF in particular feels beleaguered because it is adapting — lending far longer periods, being more understanding, mare influenced in practical decisions by LDC representation than is generally acknowledged. But the sums of money needed to assist countries are so much greater than current practice that major augmentation of the fund's resources has to be contemplated.

The World Bank, for its part, is becoming increasingly involved in projects which reduce developing conotries' dependence on imported energy; and for this it needs massive funds.

Perhaps the most important aspect of all at this meeting was the growing feeling that the problems were becoming more sharply defined, and potential compromises less readily dismissed.

Industrial countries and "middle income" developing countries can unite to common purpose if the former maintain open markets during a difficult time for the world trading system, and if they use their political muscle to augment the resources of the international financial institutions io a way which shows the vision of, say, the Marshall Plan. The "middle income" countries have to use the funds to huild up their economic independence.

But there is a "low income" - that is, almost starving — group of countries, largely in sub-Saharan Africa and Soutern Aisa, for which a truly immense aid program is needed, with all the difficulties that entails in practice. This is really not a matter for the IMF, but for a most specific relief effort. Action on this front may relieve some of the tensions between the LDCs and the fund which, as ooe official put it, "is, after all, a lending institution and you can't put a lending institution in the hands of the borrowers." - (OFNS)

Scientists envisage N-disaster

By Joyce Egginton

NEW YORK -If either of the superpowers were to launch a full. nuclear attack upon the other, the devastation would be so intense that life for the few survivors would be "socially unrecognizable," and the extinction of the entire human race would be threatened by rapidly spreading famine, disease and genetic

This was the concerted view of a group of leading American scientists and physicians who, in an unusual conference in New York last month, presented a bleak picture of what could happen to the world by the year 2000. Some of the key speakers were men who worked un the development of nuclear fission more than 35 years agn, and who are now deeply fearful of the extent to which their country's atomic arsenal has been developed.

"I think a nuclear war is highly probable by the end of the century. Perhaps not in my time because I am 80 years old, but all nf you may be involved," Professor George Kistiekowsky, of Harvard Und " versity, told a bushed audience of lay people.

In what he called his "warmongering days," Dr. Kistieknwsky, a nuclear chemist, was bead of the explosives division of the Manhattan Project (the U.S. code-name for the team which developed the world's first atomie bomb). Now be is a leader of a recently formed movement of American doctors and academics, dedicated to informing the public of the medical and social consequences of a nuclear war. They cootend that this is an aspect of the arms race which has oot been addressed by politicians, and on which there is very little information for lay

The New York setting was the first major conference of its kind, but it is planned to stage others in several cities of the Western world. "We are not trying to frighten. We are trying to inform," explained Dr. H. Jack Gieger, professor of Community Medicine at New York's City College, speaking for several bundred physicians in the movement. "The idea that there can be limited ouclear war does not make sense in any biological, buman, political or realistic terms."

It would also be without precedent, he added, since present-day ouclear bombs are from 1:0 to 2,000 times more powerful than those used on Hiroshima. Also, for Hiroshima, and Nagasaki, there was quick help available from the outside. "I am asking you to imagine 2,000 Hiroshima bombs exploding all at once, and perhaps a second attack a few hours later. There would be no outside," Geiger said.

Quietly and unemotionally he presented a detailed prognosis of the effect upon Western society if New York City were to be blasted by one or two powerful atomic bumbs. Afterward, Geiger said that the very act of preparing this data for "the unimaginable but oot the incalculable" had made him physically ill for several days, with many of the symptoms of clinical depressioo. "One feels so overwhelmed and helpless," he admitted.

Maintaining that the U.S. government's estimates for atomic casualties were grossly too low, Geiger contended that a nuclear explosion in the New York area with a second strike a few hours later would leave 14 million dead "and would so disrupt the social fabric that the word survival would be meaningless."

Most hospitals would be destroyed. Most doctors and nurses would be dead. Those remaining, even if they were willing to risk further radiation, would be unable to get to victims through the fires and debris which would engulf the city.

"A conservative calculation is that each surviving and functioning physician will have 1,700 injured to care for. Most victims will die without even drugs to ease unbearable pain, and the living will envy the

Geiger predicted fires burning at up to 1,000 degrees centigrade which could consolidate into mass firestorms and turn fallout shelters into crematoria. Severe injuries fram burns would be superimposed upon andiation effects, and lethal amounts of fallout would spread for hundreds of miles. Millinns more deaths from infections and radiation-induced disease would follow in the ensuing weeks. Also, the lack of water, sanitatinn and uncontaminated food would soon take as many lives as direct injury. Yet there would be an way to pose of the millions at decomposing corpses which would not only add to the likelihood of epidemics but cause "profound emotion disarders" among the survivors. Another kind of nuclear attack was envisaged by Professor Bernard T. Feld of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, one of the pioneer atomic scientists whn worked on the first nuclear chain reaction. He said that a possible scenario now discussed by U.S. military strategists of a nuclear war which might start in the 80's would involve a counter-farce exchange of atomic bombs between the U.S. and Soviet Union, each trying to eliminate the other's ouclear arsenals.

If atomic bombs were to be rained on missile storage sites in both countries, Feld predicted that lethal fallout would cover both nations "and the onslanght worldwide would be so great that it is questionable whether the human gene pool could withstand it."

Asked what he felt to be the chance of a noclear war hy the end of the century, Feld replied: "Fiftyfifty, given the kind of stockpiling that is going on. Kisticknwsky, who took a similarly gloomy view of the future, felt that the most likely possibility was the use of nuclear weapons by a small nation "less educated in the consequences than we are." There is an annual average of six local wars, he pointed out, and it seemed quite likely that the superpowers might be drawn into one of them.

'If there is oo public opposition to our own hardliners and militarists, the possibility of our nuclear involvement is almost inevitable," he added. -

Saudi Arabian Press Review

U.S. Presidential cominee Ronald Reagan, Al

Medina ooted that every Saudi Arabian deplores

Al Javirah Wednesday ran as its lead story the signing of a SR12 billioo naval agreement between Saudi Arabia and France, under which France will supply sea-to-sea and sea-to-air rockets, aircraft and ships to the Kingdom. Al Medina and Al Riyadh led with a statement by Secretary General of the Organization of Islamie Conference (OIC) Habih Chatti, in which he said the organization is considering the creation of an Islamie force to separate the warring parties. Okaz reported in a lead story that Iraq has called upon the countries of the world to remain neutral in its war with Iran.

Newspapers frootpaged King Khaled's order to transfer SR50 million to Algeria for the reconstruction the 'quake-hit town of Al Asnam. They also gave page one prominence to furthr Iraqi victories inside the Iranian territory. The signing of the naval agreement between the Kingdom and France formed another prominent page one story in the newspapers. Lebanon's request to the United Nations to revive the Israeli-Lebanese Truce Commission in an attempt to check Israeli noslaughts figured promineotly oo the froot page of Al Rivadh newspaper.

Newspaper editorials discussed a variety of subjects, including a call to Iraq and Iran to stop fighting, giving concessions to each other. Saudi Arabia's ecommie role at the Arab and Islamie level was another topic of discussioo in some papers, which also condemned Israel's opportunistic policy and its barbarie assaults on South Lebanon.

Al Medina urged Iraq and Iran to give concessions to each other and to respond the Arab and Islamic appeal by hringing the fighting to an immediate balt and getting ready to start negotiations to arrive at a peaceful settlement of their disputes. The paper referred to OIC Secretary General Chatti's new missioo and urged the warring states to respond favorably tn peace efforts being made by Arab and Islamic circles. It expressed the hope that the buman and material devastation created by the war would make the two conotries realize it and tn respond favorably tn peace efforts.

On the same subject, Okaz noted that there was an urgent need for a favorable response from both sides toward balting the war which would benefit neither of them, especially as the major powers have declared their neutral attitude. Uoder these conditions, the paper said, it becomes even more necessary that all the states adopt a neutral attitude, which would eventually lead to the creation of a congenial atmosphere for mutual understanding oo the basis of respect for their legitimate rights and good-oeighborliness. It further held the view that a narrowing of the rift and a ceasefire would definitely cut the road before the enemies of Islam whn are all set to exploit the situation to serve their own objectives. The situation, therefore, makes it binding nn the two countries to stop fighting and to find a peaceful solution to the problem, the paper

Commenting oo the hostile statements of the Reagan's attacks on the Kingdom to earn more Jewisb votes. Thrugh Saudi Arabia is keen to maintain its frieodship with the U.S., it does not at all mean that it should remain silent over Reagan's provocations, the paper said. It added, that whenever Saudi Arabia feels its national interests lie in the procurement of its defense supplies, no power would be able to prevent it from obtaining its requirements. The paper said Sandi Arabia is fully convinced that President Carter's decision to supply F-15 aircraft to it has been taken in response to the nature of relations existing between the two countries. It added that "we shall buy F-15s with all modifications required by our security and would never accept any weapon that does not meet our requirements. The diversified sources of arms supply would ensure this for us." The paper said that Saudi Arabia's relations with its friends would oever be affected by the "theatrical movements" which Reagan has learned well at Hollywood. He is better advised to remain a patriot and abstain from becoming a "Jewish Trojan Harse" in the political carriage of his country's foreign policy. Such a step by him would be advantageous to his country and people and would help in maintaining international relations an an equal footing, the paper concluded.

Al Bilad dealt with the repeated Zionist attacks on the Lebanese territory, saying that Israel is keen to dominate Southern Lebanon at a time when the Arab and Islamic world is preoccupied with finding a way for Iraq and Iran to stop fighting. The paper urged the Arab and Islamic world to stand resolutely in the face of the Zionist plots, stressing that the Arabs and Muslims can successfully confront their commoo enemy only when they work in complete unity and solidarity discarding all rifts and mutual differences.

As pilgrims perform rites

Sincerity in Hajj regains purity

JEDDAH -- According to the Holy Qurao every Muslim is required to observe the five pillars of Islam, to profess that there is no god but Allah and that Muhammad is his prophet. to pray five times daily, to give alms, lo fast during the month of Ramadan and to make the Pilgrimage, known as the Hajj, to Mecca at least once in his lifetime if at all possible. Literally, Hajj is to have the intention of going on Pilgrimage

The Hajj — the Pilgrimage to Mecca — is ssentially a series of rites performed in Mecca and in nearby Arafat, Muzdalifah and Mena. The Hajj must be made between the 8th and the 13th days of the month, Dhul-Hijjah of the Muslim lunar year.

Hajj demands that one should wholly submit oneself to the Lord like a true believer. remove all ooe's shortcomings and errors of conduct, in spite of carrying out all religious obligations at home, by travelling ahroad in the way of Allah, and visiting the holy places and returning home as innocent and pure as a

The later life, however, will show whether a person has truly benefitted from the hlessings of Hajj or has remained devoid of them. The person whose later life does oot bear any impress of Hajj cannot hope to overcome his weaknesses in any other way. The pilgrim therefore has to consciously weigh his inteooons before proceeding for Hajj, perform each rite with full sincerity after reaching the Kaaba and do his best to gain all the benefits for which Hajj has been enjoined as a duty in

Donning the Ihram:

(The pilgrim's robe consists of two seamless white sheets: one is wrapped round the loins and the other thrown across the body at an appointed place outside of Mecca.)

The pilgrim changes into Ihram with the intention of performing Hajj and pronounces

"Labbaik, Allahumma lahbaik, Labbaik, la Sharika laka labbaik, Innal-hamda wanni mata Laka-wal mulk, Lasharika lak'. Here I am, O Allah! Here I am, there is oo one who is Your partner, here I am! Surely all praise and blessings are Yours, and dominioo. You are without compaoioo". Performing the Tawas:

The pilgrim then proceeds directly to the Holy Mosque to circle the Kaaba, The Tawaf is the act of circling the Kaaba oo foot seven times. After the pilgrims perform the Tawaf, they perform the Sa'y (the running) where they run between the bills of Al-Safa and Al-Marwa, where Hagar searched for water for her infant son Ismail. She ran desperately back and forth seveo times between the above hillocks, until the Angel Gabriel appeared and, stamping the ground with his beel, brought water for ber and her child. This is the origin of the well of Zamzam. Pilgrims also run seven times in commemoratioo of this eveot.

Going to Mena and Arafat:

On the 8th day of Dbul Hijjah the pilgrim hegins the main rites of the Hajj by going to Mena, where he prays five prayers and theo moves to Arafat. He may go directly to Arafat, bowever, where he must stay until the sunset of the ninth day of Dhul Hijjah. This period at Arafat is called the day of standing and this action is the single most essential act duriog the Pilgrimage. The Prophet Muhammad has said, "Hajj is halting at Arafat". In Arafat there is a hill called the mount of mercy, at the bottom of which the Prophet Muhammad delivered his farewell sermon during his own Pilgrimage. It is this eveot which the standing at Arafat com-

Toward Muzdalifah:

After sunset the pilgrims proceed eo masse from Arafat to a place called Muzdalifah a few miles away from Meoa. In Muzdalifah the pilgrims worship and sleep. There they gather a number of pebbles for use during the rites on the following days. Going to Mena:

After midnight of the ninth day, the pilgrims move from Musdalifah to Mena, where they remain for three days. There they throw oo the first day seven pebbles at one of three white-washed, rectangular masonry pillars. The pillars which they stone oo this occasioo represent devils. The largest of the three pillars represents Satan himself who three times tried to persuade the prophet Abraham to disobey God's command to sacrifice his son. The throwing on the pebbles symbolizes the pilgrim's repudiation of evil. On the succeeding days the pilgrims throw twenty pebbles a

The feast of sacrifice starts the morning of the tenth day of Obul Hijjah, that is, the first day at Mena, where the pilgrims who cao afford it sacrifice a sheep, cow, goat or other animal. Some pilgrims share in the sacrifice of a single animal. They all give a portion of the meat to the poor. The sacrifice has several meanings. It commemorates Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son. It symbolises the believer's preparedness to give up what is dearest to him. It commemorates Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son. It symbolises the believer's preparedness to give up what is dearest to him. It marks the Muslim reounciatioo of idolatrous sacrifice. It offers thanksgiving to God, and it reminds the pilgrim to share his hlessings with those less fortunate.

Muslims all over the world are on the same day performing an identical sacrifice, and thus vicariously sharing in the elation of the pilgrims in Mecca. The sacrifice is therefore an integral part of a worldwide Muslim celebration that unites those on Hajj with those

Releasing from the Ihram:

After completion of the rites at Mena, the pilgrims have completed a major part of the Hajj. Both meo and women now cut off or clip some of their hair. For meo it is recommended that they have their heads shaved. At this point the pilgrims may remove the Ihram. Tawaf Al -Ifadah:

All pilgrims oow go to the Holy mosque and circle the Kaaba a final seven times; this is called Tawaf Al-Ifadah. Theo the pilgrims return to Mena for three days. All of the rites of the Hajj are oow completed.

After the three days at Mena pilgrims are free to visit the Holy City of Medina and return home, after returning for a farewell Tawaf to Mecca. This final Tawaf is called Tawaf Al-Wida:

"And proclaim unto mankind the Pilgrimage, they will come unto Thee on foot and also oo lean camel; they will come from every deep valley". (Quran 22:27) The Prophet Muhammad has said:

"The persoo who came oo Pilgrimage to the House of Allah then neither committed any indeceot act, oor iodulged in any disobedience of Allah, he will return home as pure (of sins) as be was on the day his mother

Bahrain fighting oil slick in Gulf

Wednesday sent out helicopters and an armada of hoars to fight a huge oil slick threatening to swamp the heaches of this Gulf island and cause havock to marine life. Bahrain's Information Minister Tariq Moayyed said the slick was being sprayed with special chemicals in the hope these would break it up.

Moayyed said the slick was about 60 miles long and 20 miles wide, almost as big as the total area of Bahrain island itself.

It was currently 40 miles oorth of the island and was being slowly drifted southward by prevailing wiods and curreots.

There was hope the wind might blow it clear of the oorthern tip of Bahrain, hut the local authorities were taking no chances.

The huge slick was caused when an offshore oilwell at As Saffaniay to the Saudi oil earlier this mooth killing 19 persoos.

Bahrain was affected by two large oil slicks carlier this summer, both of them caused by accident in oil installation at the nearby Saudi oil fields. Moayyed said Bahrain was buying anti-pollution equipment to make it the top oil-slick fightiog center io the whole oil producing region.

"We do not particularly want to become the pollution fighting center of the Gulf, but unfortunately it looks as if someone will have to do it," he added.

Officials said it was too early to determine the likely extent of the damage to local. marine life if the new slick reaches the Bahrain coastline.

India to double production of crude at offshore wells

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15 (R) - India is to double crude oil production at its Bombay high offshore wells to 12 million too in two years, an official spokesman said Tuesday. He said the government had agreed to spend about $381 million to double Bombay's high's annual output of six million tons by mid-1982. Their output accounts for about half of India's total domestic crude oil pro-

India has been hit badly by the suspensioo of oil supplies from Iran and Iraq because of the Guif war, and Petroleum Minister Veerandra Patil said Tuesday the government had launched a frantic search for crude oil.

About two-thirds of India's crude imports of 16 million tons this year were to have come from the two warring Gulf countries.

Official sources said last week that India was shopping for petroleum in other Gulf countries and buying crude and petroleum products oo the spot market.

Patil, who was speaking at a seminar in New Delhi, visited Moscow earlier this mooth and received assurances from the Soviet Union that it would fully meet its contractual obligations to provide 1.7 millioo tons this year. India is expected to ask the Soviet Union to increase crude supplies to 2.5 millioo tons next year.

and picketed most of Flat's plants, the company's car divisioo employs 114,000 workers. Foschi said he hoped the conflict would be settled by Thursday and added that trade union leaders would return to Turin, Fiar's headquarters, to discuss the issue with the Flat workers.

More than 40,000 workers marched through Turin Tuesday in an anti-strike demonstration to demand a resumption of production and a Turin magistrate ordered the removal of all pickets.

The demonstration revealed a major rift in the strike front and labor ministry sources said it helped to tip the balance in the negotiations.

Neither Fiat oor the unions would provide details of the agreement before union leaders and workers had a chance to examine the plan. Bargainers planned to meet Thursday afternoon to sign the draft if it received oecessary unioo approval.

PEKING, (AP) - Oman and China signed Tuesday their first governmental agreement, a trade pact; China's official Xinhua News Agency reported. Later, it said, Oman's Minister of Commerce and Industry, Mohamad Zubair, met with Chinese Premier DAMASCUS, (AP) - The United Arab Emirates has delivered the seventy-million dollars the U.A.E. had promised as its share in 1980 Syrian aid, sources here said Tuesday. The sources said Syria has received all 1980 aid pledges that Arab states at the ninth Arab summit in Tunis had promised to deliver.

WASHINGTON, (AP) - President Jimmy Carter warned Tuesday against the kind of trade war which he said ruined the world's economy half a century ago. In a speech to the National Press Club, three weeks before election day, he said: "We oeed to insist, first of all, on fair rules of trade with other nations - in every product. Our program to help the American steel industry will help to achieve this kind of fairness.

To be a good bridge player, you must live in a constant state of fear, always afraid that if something can go wrong it will go wrong. Actually these fears seldom materialize, but just the same a conscientious declarer assumes that all his finesses will fail and that every suit will be divided unfavorably. He then tries to shape his play so as to overcome each such possibility. In effect, the expert bridge player hopes for

Declarer's mettle is put to the test at this point. If he plays the ace of spades from dummy, East ruffs it to produce the third trick for the defense and later scores a diamond trick to put four hearts down one. Granting that this outcome would fall into the category of bad luck, the fact remains that declarer should not play dummy's ace of spades at trick four. He should play a low spade instead! Declarer should not run the risk of having the ace ruffed. He can protect against that possibility by ducking the jack of spades. The duck assures the contract — since the spades can easily be established by trumping a low spade regardless of what West plays next - and there cannot be a better reason for ducking the spade jack than the undeniable fact that the duck guarantees ten tricks.

It would seem that a gloomy philosophy in approaching this game called contract bridge sometimes helps matters considerably. Perhaps Schopenhauer would have Here is an example of the been a very good bridge

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15 (Guardian) — Babrak Karmal, head of the Soviet-installed regime in Afghanistan, may be fighting for his political life during his official visit to Moscow, which starts Thursday.

News Analysis

Informed sources, close to the Kabul regime, said the Russians had been dismayed at the continuing destructive clashes between Karmal's Parcham (Flag) Party, and the rival Communist Khalq (People's) group.

The sources said the Soviets were also assessing their own military losses in Afghanistan since the invasion last December, when they installed Karmal, expecting him to be a liberal and moderate leader, capable of uniting the warring Communist factions and also gaining support among the Afghan people.

Moscow is having serious second thoughts about Karmal, and the tactics they themselves should adopt in Afghanistan, the sources said. The Afghan media has finally announced Karmal's forthcoming trip to Moscow, describing it as "an official visit at the invitation of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet and the Soviet government". No dates have been given.

Although some Western diplomats speculate that the Soviet intention might be to boost Karmal's position domestically and internationally, this is not borne close links with the Soviet Union. It was believed that an approach had already heen made to the king, to assess whether any accommodation could be .. reached.

For nearly a century. Afchan national.

For nearly a century, Afghan nationalism was in reality Pathan nationalism—and among the Pathans, the powerful Muhammadzai clan dominated. King Zahir Shah is a member of that clan, as was the man who deposed him in 1973, Muhammad Daoud. The first of the Communist revolutions came in 1978.

Reports from Pakistan say that some Afghan refugees and Mujahideen have now tired of the sometimes bloody divisions between more than twenty rival insurgent groups, with their attendent personal ambitions and conflicting ideologies, and are seeking to build a united front based on old loyalnes to tribe and king.

It is not, therefore, totally surprising that the Soviets might be considering King Zahir Shah as a possibly honorable way out of a bloody and escalating guerrilla war, while still enabling them to retain political influence. However, the Zahir Shah option is unlikely to be the card played next in this confusing and labyrinthian game.

It is by no means certain that the king would be interested in any such deal, and the Soviets have other more obvious figures waiting in the wings who might be called upon to replace Karmal.

The Soviet dilemma in Kabul is increased by the fact that not only is Karmai's own Parcham group hitterly and physically opposed to the Khalqis, but that the Parchamites themselves have split. The Kabul sources said that a strong Parcham faction had emerged which opposed the continuing Soviet military presence in Afghanistan.

A meeting of Kabul's revolutionary council was beld last week, the sources said, and hard words were exchanged. Babrak Karmal himself was reportedly insulted several times. The upshot of this in-fighting is that the Soviets — who backed two revolutionary regimes of Khalqis, before switching to the Parcham Party — may be preparing to change horses again.

There is a strong sense of deja vu in some of the moves recently made. When the previous Tarakki regime purged Parchamites from his administration in 1978, Babrak Karmal — his number two man — was appointed ambassador to Prague, and was kept in the wings, under Soviet protection, until Moscow was ready to instal him as the Afghan regime's new leader.

Recently, Karmal's own number two man — Assadullah Sawari, a member of the Khalq group — managed to be in Moscow when Karmal began his own purge earlier this year. Sawari has since been appointed ambassador to Mongolia. While known locally as' "the butcher" for his large-scale executions under Karmal's two predecessors, Sawari dearly enjoys the patronage of the Soviet Union, and Russian diplomats have recently been highlighting his role as a revolutionary during the April 1978 "Saur." revolution.

L.Klein awarded Nobe

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 15 (AP) — The 1980 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics was awarded Wednesday to Lawrence R. Klein of the University of Pennsylvania.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, which presents the award in memory of dynamite inventor Alfred Nobel, cited the American "for the creation of economic models and their application to the analysis of economic fluctuations and economic policies."

Klein, born in Omaha, Nebraska, on Sept. 14, 1920, is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and bas taught at the University of Pennsylvania since 1958.

He was principal economic adviser to Jimmy Carter during the successful 1976 presidential election campaign and in 1977 became a White House adviser. However, he only lasted a few months, quitting in a dispute over anti-inflation policy.

Klein is the author of several books, including Essay on the Theory of Political Economy and The Keynesian Revolution. He also created the economic prediction model at the Wharton School, which is considered one of the best sources for economic forecasting in the United States.

The 60-year old professor during the last three years has proved to be the leading researcher within the field of analysis of business fluctuations, the awarding body said. Since 1950 Klein has conducter empirical since 1950 Klein has conducter empirical studies by constructing and analyzing models. His most famous model was constructed in collaboration with American colleague Arthur Goldberger. They followed up work initiated by Dutch Professor Jan Tinbergen, one of the first economics prizewinners, in the 1930.

"Thanks to Klein's contributions, the building of econometric models has attained widespread, not to say universal use. It is now to be found all through the world, not only at scientific institutions, but also in public administration, political organizations and large enterprises," the academy of sciences pointed out in a statement.

"Few, if any, research workers in the empirical field of economic science have had so many successors and such a large impact as Lawrence Klein," the awarding body said.

The prize in economics is a late addition to the original Nobel prizes, set up in 1968 by the Central Bank of Sweden in connection with its tercentenary. It is announced and presented together with the original prizes and carries the same prize sum, this year a record $212,000. The economics prize has been beavily dominated by Americans, Since first awarded in 1969 there have been nine Americans, ont of a total 18 laureates, including Klein.

IOHANNESBURG, Oct. 15 (AFP) — A crowd of several thousand blacks Wednesday defied police, armed with automatic weapons and using dogs, in attempts to storm the town hall of Soweto, the vast African township 25 kilometers from here.

Reports from the area said that 15 people had been arrested and three policemen injured during demonstrations against Mayor David Thebehalf's intention to confer honorary Soweto citizenship on the cooperation and development minister, Piet Koornhof.

Police, carrying clubs and firearms, charged the crowds at least twice, but the

To cheers from the crowd one group boosted to their shoulders Nthato Motlana, leader of the township's nnofficial "Committee of 10" and the man regarded by many observers as the real leader of the Soweto community.

The mayor was standing at a town hall window as the thousand-strong crowd stormed the building. He is one of the most controversial black political figures in South Africa and best known for his plan to bring electricity to Soweto slums, which will mean big rent rises, possibly of up to 75 per cent.

Sadat opens Suez tunnel on Oct. 23

CAIRO, Oct. 15 (AP) — President Anwar Sadat will next week inaugurate Egy f a fast tunnel under the Suez Canal, carrying traffic and water between the Nile Valley and Sinai under his "peace" policy to make the desert flower.

Built with British and West German participation for $60 million, 17 kms north of Sucz at the 111-year-old canal's southern end, it is the first of five planned between the cities of Sucz and Port Said.

Sadat, who wants to develop the Sinai which Israel began to hand back after the Camp David peace agreements, has said the October 1973 war should be Egypt's last with the Israelis on the other side of the Sinai.

The new tunnel, to be officially inaugurated on Thursday next week, will have capacity for 1,000 vehicles an hour on a seven meter wide road, as well as a water pipeline to irrigate the desert. Construction began in September 1978 with 800 Egyptian engineers and workers, and 53 British and 16

West German experts.

The tunnel will be named after Ahmed Hamdi, an engineer killed during the Egyptian army's crossing of the Suez Canal at the start of the 1973 war. The tunnel is 4,220 meters long, nearly half of it at a depth of more than 40 meters.

Gold up, dollar strong

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AF) — The dollar strengthened against world currencies Wednesday and markedly against the West German mark amid speculation the Bundesbank will lower interest rates. Gold prices rose but dealers said trading was quiet.

The dollar was quoted at 1.822 marks, compared with 1.8183 at the close in Frankfurt late Tuesday. "There is obviously some belief the Bundesbank will lower its key merest rates," said one foreign exchange dealer.

He added, "I can only see justification for purely domestic reasons. Extremely, the mark is weak across the board." Gold in London was fixed Wednesday morning at $676.25 dollars a troy ounce, compared with 670 dollars late Tuesday, in Zurich gold traded at a median 676.50 dollars compared with 670.50.

The New York Times poll showed that about one-fifth of voters in the big states of Pennsylvania, California and Texas are undecided — an unusually high percentage. In the Associated Press-NBC News poll, more than two-thirds of the likely voters — 68 per cent — said they had made up their minds — up from 61 per cent in the previous poll taken Sept. 22-24.

On the major issues of the campaign, American voters have found clear differences between Research and Carter. On almost all domestic issues. Reagan believes in less involvement by the federal government.

On foreign and defense policy, Carter toughened relations with the Soviet Union after the Russians moved into Afghanistan.

But he continued to support ratification of the SALT II treaty "at an appropriate time." Carter postponed imposing additional sanctions against Iran after the Tehran government promised to take custody of the Ameri-

Reagan flatty opposes SAL1 II and maintains that U.S. problems overseas are the result of a decline in American military strength under the Carter Administration's "contradictory signals to the Soviet Union."

On defense, Reagan is a long-time advocate of increased military spending in order to keep pace with the Soviet Union. He supports development of the B-1 supersonic bomber, the neutron bomb and the MX missile and backs increased pay and benefits for the military.

Carter, in contrast to his 1976 campaign plodge to reduce unlitary spending, has proposed record defense expenditures for 1981. His increases would cover all areas of the military, including strategic weapons such as the MX missile, additional aircraft and warships

Carter has called the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan "the greatest threat to world peace since the Second World War" and responded with various actions including the partial grain embargo. Reagan dains that. Carter's foreign policy, "or lack of it," is responsible for the situation. He suggested a full trade ban and said that if he were president he would consider a blockade of Cuba in retaliation for Soviet intervention in Afshanistan.

On the "Carter Doctrine," the president, in his 1980 State of the Union address, warned the Soviet Union that the United States would defend the Gulf region. He did not draw precise boundaries or indicate plans to station ground forces in the region.

Reagan has been critical of that pledge, accusing Carter of sending conflicting signals to Moscow, "Proclaiming military force will be employed to defend these interests when we haven't the military power to do so is a very hollow doctrine indeed," Reagan has said.

Carter granted full diplomatic recognition to China on Jan. 1. 1979, and severed relanons with Taiwan. Reagan opposed this move but his chief foreign policy adviser has stated that Reagan would maintain the United States' current policies toward China and Taiwan.

On Illegal ellem. Carter mixed Congress in 1977 to allow millions of aliens to remain in the United States. But he proposed sealing the border against more aliens and would penalize those who employ anyone still in the country illegally. Reagan has said the way to deal with the problem is to document illegal workers, not build a fence between two friendly nations.

Independent challenger Anderson is running on a basically conservative platform. He is opposed to any new federal programs to social issues like minority and women's right. He say he believe his "strong yet wise defense for America." His platform calls for a new set of talks with Soviet leaders on the subjects of verification of missiles and future reductions in Russian troop strength in Eastern Europe.
